Norway Gives DP Great Welcome

A transport of 339 Jewish D.P.s from Germany, mainly craftsmen and trained farmworkers, arrived in Norway. They are to live in camps, and will be given a three months' course of "acclimatisation." After five years' residence they will be able to apply for Norwegian citizenship. Another 200 immigrants will join them later.

On arrival at the port of Halden, the D.P.s were met by Norwegian Red Cross workers; near the port, in the Oslo Fjord, lies the wreck of the German transport ship, Donau, on which over 700 Norwegian Jews—two-thirds of the entire Jewish population of Norway — were taken to the death-camps in Germany.

Sverre Petersen, who led the Norwegian selection team in Germany, told the immigrants; "We live in a country where justice rules, and our laws grant individual liberty without racial or religious discrimination. You may, therefore, feel safe here. The fact that Norway is taking D.P.s will not greatly help the hundreds of thousands of your friends still interned in the same camps in which they saw their relatives killed by the Germans. We hope that the big Nations will also help."

Marcus Levin, chairman of the Norwegian Jewish Social Committee, declared: "Norway has brought you to build up your own life and Norway's."

The Chief Rabbi of Norway, Dr. Dr. Leopold Goldmann, who fought in Russia as a partisan officer during the war, told how the Norwegians under the Nazi regime, had saved the lives of 889 Jews, smuggled [illegible]

On behalf of his fellow immigrants, D. Gordon thanked the Norwegian King, the Government, [illegible] societies concluded with the singing of the Norwegian national anthem and Hatikvah, the Zionist song.

Noted Polio Authority Dies

Dr. Marcus Neustaedter, seventy-six, a leading specialist on diseases of the nervous system, and consulting neurologist of the New York Cancer Institute since 1926, died at the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital, 303 East Twentieth Street, after a short illness. He lived and had offices at 27 East Ninety-third Street.

Dr. Neustaedter was a noted authority on poliomyelitis and lethargic encephalitis (sleeping sickness) and was the author of numerous papers on the diseases.

In 1911, after years of pioneer research work on infantile paralysis, he stirred world-wide attention with an announcement showing that the disease was transmitted by dust which entered the body by the nose or throat.

Dr. Neustaedter was the first to prepare an antigen for polio, successfully inoculating monkeys with the virus and making possible a positive complement fixation reaction for determining the presence of polio infections, even in its early stages when objective findings are negligible.

In 1917 he collaborated with Dr. E. J. Banshaff to develop a serum, made from the blood of horses, that benefitted human polio victims. Prior to their discovery, serum was prepared from human blood and it was virtually impossible to obtain enough from the source.

Dr. Neustaedter was born in Austria and came to New York when he was seventeen. He was graduated from the Bellevue Hospital Medical College in 1896 and ten years later received his Ph.D. at New York University.

Anti-Zionists Attack Jewish State Aim

The American Council for Judaism, Inc., submitted a memorandum to the United Nations asserting that establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine would be harmful to Jews throughout the world and would endanger peace and security in the Holy Land.

The twenty-seven page pamphlet, signed by Lessing J. Rosenwald, president of the non-Zionist organization, was circulated among the eleven delegates of the Committee of Inquiry on Palestine. The committee left this last week on a tour of the Holy Land and probably Europe's displaced persons' camps to study the Palestine problem and make recommendations for its solution to the General Assembly.

Charging that the Balfour Declaration had in effect sustained the "anti-Semitic racialist lie that Jews the world over were a separate, national body," Mr. Rosenwald called on the United Nations to prevent the establishment of a Jewish state in Palestine or anywhere else.

The memorandum sharply attacked the Zionist argument that Jews should be permitted to establish a national home in the Holy Land. It said that Jews should seek maximum integration in the countries in which they lived and that proposals identifying a state with a racial or religious segment of its population were contrary to democratic concepts.

The fundamental Zionist claim that Jews the world over have special rights in Palestine not shared by non-Jews must be regarded as abhorrent to the unorganized [illegible] the statement that Palestine is the only place where Jews can live as Jews, and that they must go to another country, Palestine, it asserted.

The "perniciousness" of this theory is self-evident, Mr. Rosenwald said. One might ask, he added, whether citizens in this position could give complete allegiance to their country. Any claim in behalf of Jews for automatic rights in two countries is fraught with serious consequences to their position as citizens, it was asserted.

The memorandum noted that the number of Jews in Palestine was a small fraction of the surviving Jews in the world. The overwhelming majority of Jews live in countries in which they have attained the status of citizenship equal to that of any other persons, and these millions will suffer irreparable harm unless the United Nations embodies specific safe-

To Ask U.N. For Return Of Orphans To Jews

The Commission on the Status of Jewish War Orphans in Europe will appeal to the United Nations Committee on Human Rights for legislation to return to the Jewish faith 40,000 Jewish war orphans estimated to be in Christian foster homes.

Dr. I. Grunfeld, senior member of the Ecclesiastical Court of the Chief Rabbi of the British Empire and chairman of the commission, outlined the appeal to be made.

First difficulties arose, he explained, when the commission tried to get an accurate count of the number of Jewish orphans in foster homes. Many have changed their names, many have been baptized or assimilated into a Christian environment and foster parents have refused to cooperate, it was declared.

Dr. Grunfeld denounced "conversionists," said to desire to "save the souls of the Jewish war orphans for Christianity."

"With all the zeal that smells [illegible] people hold on to the children and refuse to part with them."

In France, according to Dr. Grunfeld, the children have been made wards of the state, but the law does not force the Christian families or institutions to register the orphans with the French authorities. The situation was reported to be similar in Belgium.

In Poland and Hungary there is no legal obstacle to the children's return to a Jewish environment, but the foster parents show no inclination to part with their wards, it was declared.

Dr. Grunfeld described conditions in Holland as being most unsatisfactory. Care of the children there has been transferred to an interdenominational war orphans commission.

The advocate said the children, who are now 10 to 16 years old, would not arbitrarily be wrenched from their present home environments, but would make their own decisions after consultation with Jewish religious advisers.

The two proposals that Dr. Grunfeld will bring before the United Nations are:

That every country "consider it a debt of honor to the martyred sons and daughters of Israel to restore their surviving orphans to Jewish faith and environment."

That legislation be passed in each country requiring all such orphans to be registered with the authorities, so that the orphans may be handed over to their relatives or to the nearest Jewish community.

School Backers Dispute On Radical Issue

The dispute between the backers of the proposed Brandies University in Waltham, Mass., widened as George Alpert, president of the board of directors, charged that two members of the board who announced their resignations had tried to give the school a "radical, political orientation." The non-sectarian university was organized under Jewish auspices.

Mr. Alpert admitted that there was a wide divergence of opinion on the board. He attributed it to fund-raising problems and educational policy differences.

The head of the board made his statement through the university's public information office a day after Albert Einstein and two associates had reported the end of their connection with the school. The two men were S. Ralph Lazrus, secretary of the Benrus Watch Company, and Dr. Otto Nathan, of New York University.

The statement made no mention of Dr. Einstein. It did, however, criticize Mr. Lazrus for what was called his failure in the institution's fund-raising campaign and Dr. Nathan for alleged failure to organize an educational advisory committee.

With Mr. Alpert's charges the university released a statement by Susan Brandeis, daughter of the late Supreme Court Justice for whom the school was named.

Miss Brandeis, a member of the New York State Board of Regents, declared that Mr. Lazrus and Dr. Nathan "arrogated to themselves the shaping of academic policy, the selection of a president and other [illegible]

Calls Human Rights Idea "Utopian" Now

In the name of the World Jewish Congress, Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig appealed to the United Nations for action in enforcing respect for human rights. He said that only the presence of "United Nations troops" in Germany has prevented "massacres" now against Jewish residents there.

Declaring that "anti-Semitic movements" existed in many parts of the world, Dr. Perlzweig, head of the political separation department of the World Jewish Congress, said:

"If the United Nations could publish the facts, it might make a difference."

Speaking at a press conference, he said: "We ask for action now!"

The insistence of the World Jewish Congress, he said, is based on the current and recent record of anti-Semitism that he illustrated by citing examples from abroad.

With a letter from Dr. Perlzweig to Trygve Lie, Secretary General of the United Nations the World Jewish Congress has sent to the committee now drafting the international bill of rights, these proposals for enforcement of respect for human rights:

(1) Allow the United Nations to give legal recognition of individual petitioners against alleged violations of human rights.
(2) Direct the Commission of Human Rights to publish such bonafide petitions with the comments of the Governments concerned.

Charges Large Concerns With Bias

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, testified in Washington that employment discrimination for racial or religious reasons is on the rise and called for enactment of the Ives anti-discrimination bill.

Dr. Wise told a Senate Labor subcommittee, which is holding hearings on the measure, that since the death of the war-born Fair Employment Practices Commission, a survey in six cities has shown a 195 per cent increase in help-wanted ads which specify race or religion.

"During the last two years the number of complaints filed with Jewish agencies has increased by almost 100 per cent," he reported.

Rabbi Wise charged that large concerns are the chief proponents of discrimination in employment. He cited insurance firms, financial houses, utility companies and the aircraft, chemical and electrical industries.

Like other witnesses, he warned that if the United States is to lay claim to moral and democratic leadership in the world it must live up to its United Nations obligations and abolish discrimination in employment.

Dr. Wise engaged in one of several clashes with Senator Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, when the latter argued that "the South has taken better care of Negroes than the North."

"People don't want to be taken care of," Dr. Wise retorted. "In a democracy they want to help shape their own lives. You used a phrase which indicates the utterly arrogant attitude of the South. The Negro people are entitled to take care of themselves."

Shertok Gives Palestine Facts

At its first public hearing the United Nations Special Committee on Palestine heard Moshe Shertok, political chief of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, declare in Jerusalem that political cooperation between Jews and Arabs would be impossible in an independent unitary state of Palestine.

In keeping with the complete Arab boycott of the committee, no Arab was present to hear this statement.

Sitting at one end of the committee's mahogany horseshoe table on the stage of the Jerusalem Y.M.C.A. auditorium, Mr. Shertok asserted that "cornerstone of cooperation" between Palestine Jews and the British Administration had been knocked out by Britain's restrictive policy toward Zionism, says the New York Times. Relations are "extremely strained," he said.

Mr. Shertok began his speech by outlining on a map of Palestine the

J. Sossner, of New York. About two hundred guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Kert, the latter wearing a street-length dress of brown satin, and a hat of natural baku encrusted with pink roses. Mrs. A. J. Sossner, of New York, wore a dress of navy-blue sheer, and a mohair hat of navy-blue, centred by a large pink flower. Miss Muriel Sossner, of New York, sister of the groom-elect, wore a dress of black crepe, with a neckline of black lace trimming over a flesh-coloured inset, and a corsage of white gardenias. Miss Kert wore a dusty-pink crepe, and deep mauve and purple orchids in her hair. Mrs. A. L. Gittleson, Dorchester Street, her grandmother, wore a dress of black crepe, embroidered with pale blue beads, and a hat of lilacs, shaded from pink to purple tones. The receiving line was marked off with tall standards of gladioli. Centrepieces of Calla lilies, pink roses, white lilacs, and carnations; and candelabra, with candles of pink and off-white colour, formed the table decorations.

PRIME MINISTER KING WELCOMES RABBIS TO MONTREAL

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King sent the following letter to Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi, of Temple Emanu-El, in Montreal:

I had hoped that it might have been possible for me to be present to extend greetings to members of the 58th Annual Convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, meeting in Montreal. As obligations in connection with the business of Parliament have compelled me to forego this pleasure, I am writing to ask if you will convey very cordial greetings on my behalf to all who may be in attendance.

It is a matter of very general interest that, after an interval of fifty years, the Central Conference should again be meeting in Montreal. When members met for the first time in any city outside the United States in 1897, the Central Conference was in its earliest years, and with a membership small by comparison with the total of today.

The work of the present convention touches many aspects of the constantly enlarging pastoral work of the Rabbinical organization. I hope that all members will find, in the setting of this conference, many means of inspiration and encouragement, and that those who are visitors to Canada will take away with them many pleasant recollections of our country.

I wish the Convention every success.

Great Violinist Was Out-Spoken Foe Of German State

Bronislaw Huberman, sixty-four, world famous violinist and founder of the Palestine Symphony Orchestra, died at his home at Vevey on Lake Geneva, Switzerland.

Bronislaw Huberman was a virtuoso of the violin at the age of ten. He had played for Emperor Franz Joseph at the Vienna International Musical Exhibition; he had toured the capitals of Europe, winning critical acclaim as the greatest musical prodigy since Mozart.

When he was fourteen, Bronislaw presented his first interpretation of the D Major violin concerto of Johannes Brahms, then the greatest of living composers. Brahms himself listened from the directors' box at the Musikverein in Vienna as the solemn, long-haired youth gave a faultless rendition of his work.

After the concert, Brahms rushed to the Musicians' Room. The aged composer, then only a year from death, embraced the young violinist but admonished him at the same time.

"You should not have played so beautifully," Brahms said.

As his concert career progressed Mr. Huberman turned to instruction. As court violinist to the Queen of Romania, he fostered the musical careers of young violinists throughout Europe.

In 1934 he was appointed director of the Violin Master School at the State Music Academy in Vienna. Two years later, however, his opposition to the Nazi movement in Austria forced his resignation. He was a proponent of the Zionist cause and devoted himself in pre-war years to the movement of European Jews to Palestine.

While giving concerts in Palestine in 1934 Mr. Huberman determined to form a symphony orchestra, with the membership consisting primarily of German Jewish musicians who had fled from Hitler. The first concert was given in [illegible] conductor. Thousands jammed the concert hall and hundreds were turned away as the refugee musicians responded to the directorship of their exiled leader. Mr. Toscanini was so pleased that he asked to return for other concerts.

Mr. Huberman was born at Czenstochowa, near Warsaw. His father, a Jewish lawyer, took him to a performance of the Warsaw Orchestra when he was three. His response to the concert so impressed his father that the boy was enrolled, when he became six, in the Warsaw Conservatory where he studied under Michaelovitch, Rosen and Isidor Lotto.

At seven, he participated in a concert with a stringed quartet. He next studied in Berlin under Joseph Joachim, one of Europe's great violin teachers.

When he appeared before Franz Joseph in 1892, the ruler of the Hapsburg Empire was so delighted that he presented a valuable violin to the boy. Overnight, Bronislaw became a musical personality. He gave recitals in Holland, Belgium, France, England and Germany. In London, Adelina Patti asked him to appear with her at her farewell concert in Vienna in 1895.

The young violinist made the first of many concert tours to the United States in 1896. One critic wrote that he "achieved a success so brilliant as could not be exceeded by the brightest star in the galaxy of artists."

At the end of this tour, his parents, fearing that Bronislaw would exhaust himself, curtailed his concert activities for six years. He went, in 1902, to Genoa, Italy, to give a recital on Paganini's violin, a rare Guarnerius. A special law was required to permit its removal from the municipal museum to the concert hall.

In 1911 he gave an eight-concert series in St. Petersburg, Russia, and shattered all musical records. subsequent concert series in Paris in 1924 and Berlin in 1925 also set new records.

After the Nazi rise to power in 1933, Mr. Huberman was invited by Wilhelm Furtwaengler to appear with the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. He refused in an outspoken message condemning the new German state.

"In reality," he said, "it is not a question of violin concertos nor even merely Jews; the issue is the retention of those things that our fathers achieved by blood and sacrifice, of the elementary preconditions of our European culture, the freedom of personality and its unconditional self-responsibility unhampered by letters of caste or race."

Politically, Mr. Huberman was an early leader in the Pan-Europa movement. He was the author of several books, including "Mein Weg Zu Pan-Europa", and numerous magazine articles, all supporting the program of Count Coudenhove Calergi for the United States of Europe.

Mr. Huberman excited the music world in 1933 when he gave concerts with a violin bow using aluminum strands instead of horsehair. He believed the aluminum, in some respects, gave a better tone and there were many experts who agreed with him.

Mr. Huberman possessed a Stradivarius violin, valued at $90,000. During his 1936 trip to New York it was stolen from his dressing room at Carnegie Hall in the middle of the concert. He calmly continued the program with another violin. The Stradivarius was later recovered.

In 1941 Mr. Huberman moved to the United States. After war in Europe ended he returned to the Continent to donate his services in fund-raising drives for bombed-out St. Thomas Hospital in London and the La Scala Opera House in Milan. He also appeared at the International Festival in Lucerne.

Merchant Started Career On Farm

Isadore Herman Russek, seventy-two, co-founder of Russeks Fifth Avenue, Inc., women's apparel shop at Fifth Avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, New York, died of a heart ailment at his home, 262 Central Park West.

Unlike the typical immigrant boys of the late nineteenth century who started their success stories in the hurly-burly of seaboard cities, Mr. Russek started his American career on a farm in Missouri, and made his first money during the rush to settle the Indian Territories in what is now Oklahoma. Only after that [illegible] Russek, the business that now bears their name.

Mr. Russek was born in Bolleslavice, Poland, the son of the late Gabriel and Minna Kampinsky Russek. His father was a dealer in horses and hides. When Isadore Russek came to America at the age of fifteen he went to the farm of his mother's uncle, Colonel Kampinsky, in Wellesville, Missouri. Colonel Kampinsky had come to the United States before the Civil War, earned the rank of colonel fighting for the Confederacy, and numbered among his Missouri friends the late Mark Twain, a native of near-by Hannibal.

Soon after his arrival in Missouri Mr. Russek struck out for himself, working as a candy and newspaper butcher on trains in Kansas City, Mo. He was only seventeen when he realized that Kansas farmers—who were rushing in to Oklahoma's Indian lands as fast as the government opened them for settlement—were leaving their peanut crops behind them. Mr. Russek bought peanuts and turned a tidy profit on them in six months.

When his younger brother, Frank, joined him in this country, the two boys came to New York and founded the first Russeks shop, a fur shop, in Fourteenth Street.

The business grew and the brothers moved it uptown in 1914 to Thirty-fourth Street, west of Fifth Avenue, opposite the old Waldorf-Astoria. Dresses, hats and other items of women's apparel were added to the stock.

In 1924, when the store was moved to its present location—in a building designed by the late Stanford White and previously occupied by Gorham, silversmiths—the business was reorganized. Max Weinstein became president of the corporation; Isadore Russek, secretary-treasurer, and Frank Russek, vice-president.

In 1937 a branch shop was opened at Fulton and Bridge Streets, Brooklyn, and in 1939 a Chicago branch was established. Mr. Russek was responsible for importing fur styles from Paris for his concern. During the depression years he made an innovation in department-store operation by displaying furs and ready-to-wear articles on the main floor of his store, instead of featuring accessories there, as was the general practice.

Isadore Russek was active in the work of the Daughters of Jacob Home and Hospital, Findlay Avenue and East 167th Street, the Bronx, and was trustee of Temple Anshe Chesed, 100th Street and West End Avenue.

Surviving, besides his brother, are his wife, Mrs. Rose Spingarn Russek, whom he married in 1900, and a daughter, Mrs. Robert S Gaynor.

MONTREAL MARRIAGES

PRESNER-BRISKIN

The marriage of Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Briskin, 6793 Trans Island Avenue, to Norman B. Presner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Presner, 5802 Waverley Street, took place on Sunday, June 8, at half-past six o'clock, at the Mount Royal Hotel, Rabbi Charles Bender officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a long ivory-shaded satin gown, designed with a round neckline, a nylon yoke embroidered with pearl beads, long, pointed sleeves, close-fitting bodice, and a full skirt, with a circular train. A coronet of pearls caught her tulle veil, and she carried a white prayer-book, with markers of mauve orchids, and lilies-of-the-valley. Miss Mollie Briskin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, wearing a floor-length gown of blue taffeta and net, fashioned with an off-the-shoulder neckline. She had matching net gloves, and a coronet with a blue shoulder-length net veil. Her cascade bouquet was of pink carnations, with sweet peas. Irwin G. Presner, brother of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Mee Clapoff, Alec Colton, Alec Shtull, Eli Hershorn, Nathan Kolomir, Jack Taub, Josh. Axler, and M. Gold. The canopy was decorated with pink and white gladioli, with lighted white candles, in tall candelabra, and the aisle was similarly decorated. B. Aronson, of the Y.M.H.A. Minstrel Show, sang "O, Promise Me". At the Ballroom of the hotel, where the reception was held, the tables were adorned with seasonal flowers. Mrs. Briskin, mother of the bride, received, wearing a powder-blue gown, with a pink tulle hat, and pink veiling, matching pink gloves, and a corsage of pink carnations. Baruch Gets Interfaith Honor

The Brooklyn Round Table of the National Conference of Christians and Jews paid tribute to Bernard M. Baruch because of his contribution to the solution of "problems consistent with the great moral principles and spiritual values" of Judaism and Christianity.

Six hundred persons attended the reception at the Towers Hotel in Brooklyn where Mr. Baruch received a scroll citing his efforts toward domestic unity and international justice. The presentation was made by the Brooklyn group in behalf of the national organization. The scroll was signed by Arthur W. Dunbar, A. E. Rus...

In accepting the citation, Mr. Baruch said he treasured it above other honors because it symbolized "neighborliness and kindness" and because of "the inspiration it has given me to continue my work."

The citation said Mr. Baruch had devoted his talents to the solution of problems according to the "great moral principles and spiritual values recognized by Protestants, Catholics and Jews alike." It took cognizance also of his "contributions to making America united at home and just in its relations with other nations."

A.J.C. MEN DISCUSS D.P. WITH POPE

The Pope received Moses A. Leavitt, executive vice-chairman of the American Joint Distribution Committee, and Jacob L. Trobe, director of Italian operations for the same organization. Mr. Leavitt is visiting Italy as part of a complete review of relief needs among the European Jews.

Mr. Leavitt discussed with the Pope the urgent problem of resettlement of displaced persons in Europe. He said there were about 1,000,000 refugees who needed new homes and about 230,000 of these were Jews in Germany, Austria and Italy.

The Pope showed great concern over this grave human problem and expressed hope that an early solution of the problem might be found.

THE TEACHER
—a Conservationist
By educating today's youth in the ways of conservation, teachers can contribute greatly to the cause of conservation.

Contrary to popular opinion, the Red-shouldered Hawk is most useful to man, particularly to the farmer. The keen eyes of these hawks are ever on the look-out for field mice, grasshoppers and crickets, which they destroy in countless numbers. Anyone who is familiar with the habits and characteristics of these birds is aware of their great economic value, and encourages them to nest near fields and meadows.

"Scientific investigations into their feeding habits and the proof obtained by stomach-analyses changed the false notion that all hawks are bad."

SEEK BAN ON BRITISH FASCIST ACTS

The growth of anti-Semitic activities, particularly in North-West London, England, is leading many M.P.s to believe that special legislation should be brought into Parliament for the specific purpose of making all anti-racial activities illegal.

So far, the Home Office has maintained that the Government already have adequate powers to deal with the situation. A special branch of the Home Office is charged with investigating these activities. But the police cannot take action against anti-racial propaganda as such. They have to prosecute in general terms when they can prove a threat of violence or an incitement to a breach of the peace.

The Home Office appears to be working on the theory that it would be a tactical mistake to make martyrs of and give publicity to small and relatively insignificant groups of Fascists. But the persistence of anti-Semitic activities convinces many

The subsequent [illegible] makes it clear that the Fascist groups operating in North-West London comprise not only young hooligans. Their propaganda is organized on a scale which must cost considerable sums in printing and postage.

Mrs. Barbara Ayrton-Gould, M.P. for North Hendon, has been receiving as many as three threatening letters a week. It is known that more than 200 persons in this area have received similar threatening letters.

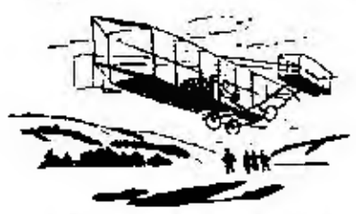
TODAY WE LIVE IN A GREATER CANADA

"On The Map" of the NEW AIR WORLD

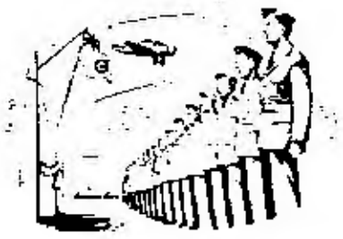
CANADA LIES at the cross-roads of the great air routes of the modern world. Through our skies pass the shortest airways from North America to Europe and to Asia. Today, because of stupendous wartime achievements, we have the personnel, the experience and the vastly expanded facilities to take advantage of that favoured position.

Significant is the increase in air traffic within our own borders. Today Canada's civil aviation is flying three times the number of aircraft miles, carrying five times the number of passengers and three times the amount of mail that it did in 1939—advances typical of Canada's tremendous modern development, with new and greater opportunities in every field of Canadian activity.



First airplane flight in the British Empire was made at Baddeck, Cape Breton, February 1909, when J. A. D. McCurdy flew in his "Silver Dart" for half a mile, rising thirty feet above the ice.

After World War I, in which Canada's fighting airmen established Canada's world-famous flying tradition, aviation's development was rapid and in Canada more air-freight was carried—much of it by the "bush pilots" of the North—than in any other country.



In World War II, with the R.C.A.F. developing and administering the gigantic Commonwealth Air Training Plan, Canada became, in President Roosevelt's words, "the aerodrome of Democracy", and emerged from the war the fourth air power in the world.

"OPPORTUNITIES...GREATER NOW"

JOHN WILLIAM BILLES, 25 years ago, used his $3,000 savings as down payment on a Toronto tire business. With his brother and five employees he began retailing automobile accessories. Initiative and industry produced results. Today his Canadian Tire Corp. is a million-dollar organization with a unique mail-order business and over 100 associate dealers throughout Eastern Canada.

MR. BILLES says: "Today I'm convinced more than ever of the soundness of my original decision to start in business for myself in Canada. Opportunities are even greater now. Today, whatever the careers they choose, young Canadians find awaiting them in our own country more worthwhile possibilities of advancement than ever were known before."

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

(Address of welcome by Rabbi Dr. Harry J. Stern to the opening session of the 58th annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis at Temple Emanu-El, in Montreal.)

My function here, as indicated on the program is a limited one, but the welcome I now extend to you on behalf of Congregation Emanu-El, the Jewish community at large, and my own self, I assure you, is meant to be unlimited in friendship, hospitality, and fraternity.

I trust by now you feel at home here in Canada, and that you have come to realize that in truth, an imaginery boundary line separtes this great Dominion from the great Republic south, and that we are linked by ties of mutual interests, both spiritual and material, and by bonds of genuine friendship. Canada and the United States have indeed found the formula by which nations can live together in peace and happiness, as was so well emphasized by President Truman during his recent state visit to Ottawa.

I take it that most of you are aware that the Central Conference met for the first and only time outside of the United States here in Montreal in 1897 under the leadership of the great pioneer of Reform Judaism, Isaac Mayer Wise. The conference was then but eight years old and this congregation Emanu-El was its host, fifteen years of age. Hence, your presence here today marks for us an historic event, a jubilee occasion, and we are profoundly grateful to you for having accepted our invitation to convene here.

It might interest you to know that in 1897 the Jewish population of greater Montreal numbered a little over 6,000 and happily today we are a community of 72,000, the largest Jewish community in the Dominion. Our community has grown not only in numbers but also boasts a dynamic social, spiritual, and cultural life, as represented by the various splendid communal, religious, educational, and philanthropic institutions. It is today one of the great kehillos on the North American continent.

The Montreal conference of 1897 is historically remembered for its rejection of the idea of a Jewish state in Palestine and for having declared such an attempt as contrary to the Jewish doctrine of universalism. That was the answer then given by the leaders of Reform to the Chovevé Zion and in particular to Dr. Theodor Herzl who was convening the first Zionist Congress in Basle, Switzerland. But much has indeed happened during these past fifty years. All the members of this conference, whether they be Zionist or non-Zionist, I am sure, glory in the great creative Jewish community that has miraculously arisen in Palestine, and a vast majority of our members are today identified with these movements which have for their object the ultimate establishment in Palestine of a Jewish commonwealth and find therein no contradiction with their belief in the doctrine of Israel's universal mission to the world and the hope for the establishment of God's kingdom on earth.

How dramatically symbolic then in contrast to the 1897 conference, is the fact that it was none other than our distinguished president of this conference, Dr. Silver, unto whom was accorded the high honor of presenting, and with such statesmanlike dignity, the Jewish case for Palestine in behalf of the Jewish Agency before the United Nations Political Commission, which met under the able chairmanship of the Honorable Lester B. Pearson, the Under-Secretary of State for Canada.

Of the revered colleagues who met in Montreal in 1897 but very few are left. Present only with us tonight is our teacher and friend, the Dean of the American Rabbinate, Dr. David Philipson. By the way, it will delight you all to know that he came from Cincinnati to this conference by plane. Talk about a sky pilot, here is one, indeed.

From Dr. Philipson's memoirs, we learn something about the kind of weather that the 1897 Conference experienced. Well, the good Doctor found it so hot in Montreal that for one whole day he remained in a bath-tub in the old Windsor Hotel. I hope this 58th convention will experience little heat and much light, the light of counsel, wisdom, and understanding.

In a way, this congregation Emanu-El is the fruitage of the conference. It is good, therefore, at this time to recall the names of colleagues who have ministered selflessly in the cause of Judaism in this community. Among those were Hartog Veld, who was so much responsible for the 1897 assembly; Isaac Landman, Joseph Kornfeld, Herbert Samuel, and Nathan Gordon, K.C., the latter who served with great distinction as president of this congregation during the first decade of my ministry here at Emanu-El. All have gone to the Yeshiba Shel Malol May God bless their memory. We rejoice seeing in the audience today Samuel Schwartz, who devotedly ministered here as did Maxwell Merritt. At this time, too, it is good to note the presence of the spiritual leaders of our sister Reform congregations in Canada, Rabbi Fackenheim, of Hamilton, and Rabbi Feinberg, of Toronto.

We are gathered here to invigorate the ancient religious heritage of our fathers by re-interpreting it in accordance with the urgent need of a new age. We have come, in the words of Isaac M. Wise, spoken here a half century ago, "In the name of God and Israel and for the sake of truth and peace and righteousness."

In these days of post-war construction we are faced with gigantic problems. With teachers of all other faiths we maintain that the future of man depends first and foremost on the laying of true and unshakeable foundations for the life of contemporary man. How challenging are the tasks of the present critical hour that face particularly religious leaders, to rebuild the waste places in the heart, to quicken the religious spirit and to revive idealism among men.

May there stream forth from the deliberations of this convention great truths and noble inspirations that will make it indeed a memorable conference, one that will add vitality to the philosophy of Jewish living, and one that will match this great hour in human history.

I again bid you a generous and warm-hearted welcome to Montreal and in the words of the soulful Psalmist, I say: Blessed be ye all who have come from near and far. We bless you out of this House of the Lord. And may a measure of your blessing remain with us here when you leave us at the conclusion of this 58th annual assembly.

NOTICE TO REVIEW SUBSCRIBERS

With the issue of July 4, 1947, the Canadian Jewish Review will raise its subscription price to $2 per year; $3 for two years in Canada. The subscription price in the United States and other countries outside of Canada will be $3 per year; $5 for two years. These changes are due to the rising cost of everything that goes into the production of the Canadian Jewish Review, and the new rate will take effect with subscriptions received on July 1, 1947, and after.

ANTI-ZIONISTS

The memorandum protested against British reference to an "historic connection" of the Jewish people with Palestine. It asserted that ignoring of the equivalent historic and religious connection with Palestine of Christians or Moslems had served to reattribute national characteristics to Jews of the world and thereby continued an "ambiguous duality."

The Council paper urged a prompt solution of the problem of displaced persons in Europe, but asserted that the question of Jewish displaced persons was part of the larger problem of displaced persons of all faiths. An appeal was made to the fifty-five members of the United Nations to make possible the admission of displaced persons not only to Palestine but to all lands.

The memorandum objected to arguments by the Jewish Agency for Palestine. Mr. Rosenwald said that the Jewish Agency "assiduously cultivates" the notion that it is an authorized spokesman for all Jews.

The American Council for Judaism declared that the Jewish Agency was not qualified to be the political spokesman for Jews in either the United States or the Soviet Union, although in these two countries there lived 70 per cent of the world's Jews.

situation of 292 Jewish settlements. He gave the following facts:

Jews are prohibited from buying land in 63 per cent of Palestine. They can acquire land only by special permission in 32 per cent. Only 5 per cent is open to free purchases.

The 640,000 Jews in Palestine had fifty-two countries of origin, but nearly half the present population was either born there or bred there. Eighteen thousand children have been settled in the country.

The Jews created their own economy in Palestine. Nineteen per cent of the Jews there live on the land, the same proportion as in the United States. They own 6 per cent of the country's area, about 1,800,000 acres, which are cultivated intensely. Eighty per cent of Palestinian industry is owned by Jews and employs 60,000.

Jews pay two-thirds of Palestine's taxes, although they are only one-third the population, said David Horovitz, head of the Jewish Agency's Economic Department, who accompanied Mr. Shertok.

SCHOOL BACKERS

formed only on the board of trustees, while failing to perform their own assigned functions."

In addition, Mr. Alpert charged that both men "surreptitiously" made overtures to a "thoroughly unacceptable choice" as president, who was not identified by the acting head.

"To establish a Jewish-sponsored university," he added, "and to place at its head a man utterly alien to American principles of democracy, tarred with the Communist brush, would have condemned the university to impotence from the start. I made it perfectly plain to Mr. Lazrus then and later that on the issue of Americanism I cannot compromise."

Dr. Einstein held no official position with the university of the foundation that bore his name. However, he was closely associated with the institution and the measures taken to raise $15,000,000 for it.

In the announcement of his withdrawal from the project no reason was given. His associates declared that he was dissatisfied with operation of the present limited facilities of the school and the policies contemplated for the future.

CALLS

velt, as United States representative, explained how difficult this would be in America, because of the nature of the United States form of government. As a specific example, she cited this article, that the United Kingdom has proposed for inclusion in the bill:

"Every person shall have an enforceable right to compensation in respect of any unlawful arrest or deprivation of liberty."

As to how to enforce such an article in the United States, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"It is hardly likely that the national Congress would eagerly assume the financial responsibility (if government compensation is meant) for state or local failure to provide compensation or the right of compensation based upon unlawful arrest or deprivation of liberty brought about under the separate judical and penal systems of the forty-eight states of the American union. The United States will probably have to arrive at some formula which will take into account our Federal-state system."

Ralph Harry, Australian member of the drafting committee, argued that since the bill was primarily to protect individuals from suffering violations of their rights by their own states, it was "not enough" to leave enforcement of the bill to the states alone, but a world court of human rights should be created.

On behalf of this idea, first presented by Australia at the peace conference in Paris, Mr. Harry said that the right to petition the United Nations against human rights violations was not enough protection either, since petitions were likely to fall into the "pigeonhole" files of the Secretariat.

Also, he said, the committee should not leave violations by one government simply to be brought to the attention of the United Nations General Assembly by another government, since governments sometimes make such moves only to "embarrass" each other politically.

Both Prof. Rene Cassin, French delegate, and Hernan Santa Cruz, Chilean member, hailed the idea of the world court of human rights for "the future" but maintained it was "utopian" now.

HAGANAH AGAINST IRGUN

The New York Herald Tribune says:

Irgun Zvai Leumi, the Jewish underground organization, cannot be charged with lack of imagination in its methods of carrying out its program of terrorism. Its latest act, the kidnapping of two British policemen from a public swimming pool near Tel Aviv, had the same quality of showmanship combined with bravado that characterized earlier Irgun activities. This element of drama should not, however, blind Americans to the fact that the majority of Palestinian Jews still give allegiance to organizations which reject the methods of terrorism.

This was clearly brought out in connection with the swimming pool incident when Haganah, by far the largest and most powerful of the underground forces, ordered all Jews to co-operate in rescuing the captured British policemen. Jews were not asked to turn any Irgunists over to the British, Haganah reserving for itself the right to deal with them. There was no time for a test of strength between Irgun and Haganah because measures taken by the British were sufficient to enable the captives to escape within twenty-four hours. The district in which the men were being held was about to be searched, and they were abandoned by their captors. Haganah's action may have contributed indirectly to the result because the Irgunists knew that after the Haganah appeal they could not count on the support of the population, and this knowledge may have frightened them into abandoning their hostages.

Haganah, which is loyal to the Jewish Agency, is opposed to measures which will prejudice success of the United Nations Special Committee of Inquiry on Palestine. It therefore denounced the kidnappings as "madness" which has no connection with the Jewish struggle." The British took the unusual step of permitting the Hebrew press to publish the Haganah appeal. They thereby tacitly accepted Haganah help. This was quite a concession for the British to make, for they have never liked the way the Jewish Agency functions as a state within the state, maintaining its own private army.

The new, more tolerant attitude of the British is to be welcomed because it, too, should help create a more favorable atmosphere for the investigations of the United Nations committee. Haganah is composed largely of idealistic and disciplined youths determined to defend their homes. It is hard to see how the British could suppress it or why they should try to do so. It has drawn the majority of the Jewish youth away from the extremists and should be a stabilizing influence in the future. If partition is the solution determined for Palestine, Haganah will be the army of the new Jewish state. Its strength should be sufficient to discourage any possible Arab aggression. It could, therefore, become a force for peace in a divided Palestine.
